

During these unsettling times, Family Promise of Tulsa County continues to support families experiencing homelessness while also safeguarding the health of our guests, amazing volunteers and staff.

As you know, we continue to host two families at an alternative location. This is possible only because of your generous support. We know that times are difficult for everyone because of social distancing, difficulty getting essential items, and fear of the unknown.

Regardless, YOU are making a difference! It's not just a meal you bring, it's hope, it's comfort, it's stability, and it's a home for two single moms and their children. The kindness, love, and support you provide can never be repaid and we are forever grateful for each and every one of you.

How is a family who has no home supposed to stay at home? Hand washing, self-isolating, disinfecting, all the things we're supposed to be doing to flatten the COVID-19 curve are difficult if not impossible when you don't have a home.

This is the unfortunate reality for so many individuals and families in our community during this crisis. Although we are unable to help them all, we can and are helping the ones we can, including Courtney and her three children (pictured in this newsletter). Her family is beyond grateful for the safe and comfortable shelter, case management, and amazing meals provided by volunteers like you.

Although we are living in unpredictable times, we are in this together and will overcome. With your continued support, Family Promise of Tulsa County can be stronger on the other side of this global pandemic, ready to support numerous children and families in need.

Thank you for helping us end homelessness... one family at a time. May we continue to be a blessing for one another in this time of being apart.

For the children,
Tina Massey
Executive Director
Family Promise of Tulsa County

Caught in the act of kindness...

"In life, there are no sure bets, except that people like you will rise to the occasion and make the world a better place." ~Unknown